Criminal Justice Review

Special Issue: Victimization and the Life Course

Criminal Justice Review invites submissions for a special issue “Victimization and the Life Course,” edited by Dr. Jillian J. Turanovic. This special issue aims to advance knowledge and understanding of victimization across the life span. Primary consideration will be given to manuscripts that:

- advance our understanding of the correlates or consequences of victimization at various stages of the life course
- explore stability and change in victimization over time
- examine victimization during understudied stages of development (e.g., late adulthood)
- address current theoretical and methodological challenges to the study of victimization across the life span

The special issue welcomes both quantitative and qualitative research, as well as strong scholarly reviews and innovative theoretical or methodological papers related to the study of victimization over the life course. Interdisciplinary perspectives are strongly encouraged.

Submissions should arrive no later than September 15th, 2017. All submitted manuscripts will be peer reviewed. An abstract of no more than 200 words and a brief biographical sketch must accompany the manuscript. Manuscripts should not exceed 25 pages of double-spaced text (excluding tables, figures, and references). Send two electronic copies of the manuscript, one full version (with a cover page containing the author’s name, title, institutional contact information; acknowledgments), and one blind copy (without any identifying information) to Jillian Turanovic at victimization.cjr@gmail.com. Manuscripts should be in MS Word format and conform to the formatting style of the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (6th ed.) and CJR formatting guidelines: <http://cjr.sagepub.com/>.
